

What happens here

3D printing and shoe string engineers collaboration on affordable engineering projects exploiting the technology being made available by the embedded controller hobby industries and the hardware markets created by the 3D printing industry or anything else that interests or amuses me.